BLIEZARD FAILED TO MALT HENS AT STORES Last Sunday's bilizzard distressed the men but not the hens in the erg laying conlest at Storm. The well fed pullets in their comfortable quarters shelled out the eggn just the same. The fact is they had over 500 eggs more than the management expected to get. During the last ten years there have been traphented at Storms 18,000 hens that have laid more than one and a half million eggs. These 16,000 hens represent thirty different varieties. They came from twenty-five different states, England and three of the Canadian provinces and were bred and owned over three hundred different and owned over three hundred different breeders. With this vast amount of data constantly at hand the men in charge of the laying contest can usually predict with telling accuracy the number of eggs the hens will lay in any particular week or month.

In the sixteenth week of the contesty all In the sixteenth week of the contesty all the pens taken together hid 3362 eggs or a yield of 45 per cent. Eenast W. Picker's pen of Barred Rocks from Glem Ridge, N. J., were at the top of the list with a preduction of 83 eggs for the west. Two pens of Rhode Island Reds entered by H. S. Bickford from Gressville, N. H., and Charles H. Lane from Seuthboro, Mass., tied for second place with 51 eggs each. F. S. Chapin's pen of the same breed from Longmeadew, Mass., was the third best pen for the week with a score of 45 eggs. Three peas of White Leghorns managed to capture fourth and fifth places. Hollywood Farn's birds from Hollywood, Wash., hald 47 eggs and Meuntain View Poultry Farm from Rutland, Va., and Ernest H. Seett frem Farningtus, Cons., both Scott from Furnington, Cosm, both scored 46 eggs each.

During the sixteenth week three Rhede Island Reds and one Leghern laid a tental of five double yelked eggs. It is interesting to note in this connection that about four-fifths of all the double yelked eggs produced are laid by pullets and not by hens. Some individuals are of course mere disposed than othere to produce an ever sixe product. On the average, however, one can in general expect to get one double yelked egg out of about every 500 hens that are collected. This means that the ratio of double to single yelked eggs is only about twice as high as the ratio of twin to single births in the human family.
